Communication & Media

Journalists, photographers, artists or film crews may only take part in an expedition after contacting the AWI department for communication and media at an early stage.

Interested persons have to contact the AWI department for communication and media for evaluation of their concept of work before a firm commitment for participation can be released. The department then signs an agreement with the applicant about the obligations of participations and utilization rights for the obtained material.

The chief scientist has to inform journalists etc. that media information have to name Alfred Wegener Institute as operator of RV Polarstern and other institutions that may take part in the expedition.

Alfred Wegener Institute welcomes contacts of expedition participants with press and reporting about the work by journalists. All press and media contacts of the participants have to be agreed by the chief scientist.
